Accession#:

Henry W.A. Hanson (1882-1962) began the longest tenure of any Gettysburg College president when he was elected to the post in the summer of 1923. His remarkable 29 year administration spanned almost three decades, and witnessed monumental events such as the Great Depression and World War II. He is remembered for the enthusiasm he showed not only for the personal welfare of the students but their academic success as well which manifested itself in many new and innovative ways such as initiating a more formal student advising program in 1924 and a Freshman Orientation Weekend in 1926.

Henry W.A. Hanson (1882-1962) began the longest tenure of any Gettysburg College president when he was elected to the post in the summer of 1923. His remarkable 29 year administration spanned almost three decades, and witnessed monumental events such as the Great Depression and World War II. He is remembered for the enthusiasm he showed not only for the personal welfare of the students but their academic success as well which manifested itself in many new and innovative ways such as initiating a more formal student advising program in 1924 and a Freshman Orientation Weekend in 1926.

Henry W.A. Hanson (1882-1962) began the longest tenure of any Gettysburg College president when he was elected to the post in the summer of 1923. His remarkable 29 year administration spanned almost three decades, and witnessed monumental events such as the Great Depression and World War II. He is remembered for the enthusiasm he showed not only for the personal welfare of the students but their academic success as well which manifested itself in many new and innovative ways such as initiating a more formal student advising program in 1924 and a Freshman Orientation Weekend in 1926.

Henry W.A. Hanson (1882-1962) began the longest tenure of any Gettysburg College president when he was elected to the post in the summer of 1923. His remarkable 29 year administration spanned almost three decades, and witnessed monumental events such as the Great Depression and World War II. He is remembered for the enthusiasm he showed not only for the personal welfare of the students but their academic success as well which manifested itself in many new and innovative ways such as initiating a more formal student advising program in 1924 and a Freshman Orientation Weekend in 1926.
