Summer 2018 Software Development Intern

DisputeSoft provides expert consulting services to law firms engaged in cutting-edge, high-profile software disputes. The software development intern is a problem solver whose work requires him/her to design creative software applications to support both the work DisputeSoft performs for its clients and DisputeSoft's internal business processes. In the past, this has taken the form of an online system that helps DisputeSoft manage its inventory of often confidential items, a marketing analytics reporting system, and a user interface for a consulting application that measures software project delay.
