Dear Gettysburgians,

It has been a remarkable year for Gettysburg College, thanks in large measure to the outpouring of support we've received from donors like you. Your philanthropic support directly impacts every student on our campus. From making a Gettysburg education accessible through scholarships and financial aid to providing career-enhancing opportunities like field research alongside devoted faculty, internships with passionate alumni, and a wide range of high-impact learning experiences—annual support is essential for advancing the College's mission.

Your gift helps to ensure that today's Gettysburgians are equipped with the knowledge and enduring skills they need to lead lives of consequence out in the world.

Gettysburg College will always be a place defined by community. The stories featured in this report illustrate the vibrancy you contribute to our campus each day through your generous and consistent philanthropic support. Thank you for your belief in our students and for all you do to strengthen our educational experience!

With gratitude,

Rahmi Halaby '18

Organization and Management Studies

Media, Pennsylvania

Rahmi fulfilled a life-long dream of owning and operating his own business thanks to the leadership and critical thinking skills he gained through his experiences at Gettysburg, including serving as president of Alpha Tau Omega, sitting on social justice committees, and participating in the Entrepreneurial Fellowship program. In 2020, Rahmi launched Linden Ave. Studio, a multi-disciplinary creative agency working with some of the world's most innovative brands, including WHotels, Converse, Moët & Chandon, and Red Bull.

"Gettysburg was the top academic institution that I applied to. I was able to qualify academically, but I never would have been able to attend if it wasn't for the combination of my scholarship and financial aid," Rahmi said. "I made the most of my time at Gettysburg, but none of this would have happened if it wasn't for the support of generous donors."

Bryn Werley '23

Chemistry, Music

Reading, Pennsylvania

Gettysburg gave Bryn, the Class of 2023 valedictorian, the ability to pursue her many passions, leading to new discoveries in science and music. Her research with Chemistry Prof. Tim Funk on iron catalysis earned her a prestigious Goldwater Scholarship and the Outstanding Presentation in Inorganic Chemistry Award at the 2022 Gulf Coast Undergraduate Research Symposium. Bryn also traveled to the Baltics to perform with the Wind Symphony and Symphony Orchestra during her senior year, and she learned how to communicate effectively as a peer learning associate in chemistry and drum major in the Bullets Marching Band.

"At Gettysburg College, I was able to build specific skills that I will use in my doctoral studies and professional career as well as soft skills that will be useful throughout my life," said Bryn, who will pursue a doctorate degree in chemistry at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Nosimat Salami '24

Health Sciences, Public Policy

Queens, New York

Endowed funding helped Nosimat pursue an immersive experience at a remote medical facility in Costa Rica during her sophomore year, and since then she has continued her newfound passion for service by working with the local community through Healthy Adams County.

This opportunity was made possible by the Seibert Fellowship Fund for Students in Service to Domestic Non-profit Charitable Organizations, an endowed fund created by Jean Deimler Seibert '69, P '06. A first-generation college student, Center for Public Service program coordinator, and multicultural ambassador in Admissions, Nosimat worked alongside Public Policy Prof. Anne Douds with local refugees through the Gettysburg Refugee Resettlement Partnership and was honored with the G. Ronald Couchman Endowed Diversity Award based on her experiences.

"I am extremely grateful for the opportunity to attend college and explore these possibilities," said Nosimat, who will study abroad in Egypt in the fall of 2023. "Not having to worry about certain financial responsibilities has allowed me to be a college student without feeling limited to the wonderful educational opportunities available at Gettysburg."
