Provenance: Note included with donation reads:

This photograph album was given by Lillian Mae Pittenturf Hollebaugh to her great granddaughter Anna Colin Collins.

Lillian Mae Pittenturf was the daughter of Henrietta Weikert and her second husband Daniel Free Pittenturf. Henrietta's first husband was George Schriver [sic] who died in Andersonville Prison.

I, Anna Colin Collins Nemeth-Barath, in turn donate the album to The Musselman Library of Gettysburg College in Gettysburg, PA July 2007.

I know that my Mombaugh, Lillian Mae Pittenturf Hollebaugh, would approve.

Five portraits of close family members have been retained by Mrs. Nemeth-Barath and the originals replaced with machine copies.

Enjoy!

The several modern postcards and photocopied genealogical documents were also included with the albums.

Biography:

Lillian Mae Pittenturf Hollebaugh was born on April 17, 1867, to Henrietta (Hettie) Weikert and Daniel Free Pittenturf. Henrietta's first husband was George Washington Shriver of Gettysburg. Shriver volunteered for service with the Union Army on August 27, 1861 and mustered into Cole's Cavalry, Co. C in Frederick, MD. The Shriver House on Baltimore Street was occupied by Confederate soldiers during the Battle of Gettysburg and used as a hospital afterwards. Henrietta had fled the house with her two daughters, Sadie and Molly, prior to the battle to take shelter at her parents' farm, located between Big Round Top and Little Round Top where some of the fiercest fighting of the Battle took place. George Shriver was captured on New Year's Day, 1864, after extended fighting with the 43rd Battalion of Virginia Cavalry (Mosby's Rangers). He later died in Andersonville Prison.

Henrietta Weikert Shriver married Daniel Free Pittenturf on July 16, 1866 at St. James Evangelical Lutheran Church in Gettysburg. They had two daughters, Lillian Mae, and Emma (b.1869) who died in infancy. Lillian married William Hollebaugh on July 12, 1885. They lived in Baltimore, MD with their four children and Lillian's mother, Henrietta. Lillian died on January 2, 1947. According to the donor, she and her mother are buried in the Hollebaugh family plot in Glenwood Cemetery in Washington, D.C.

Description:

The Lillian Mae Pittenturf Hollebaugh's albums are 2 celluloid photo albums one with a flowered front cover and deteriorated velvet spine and back cover and the other is a music box album with a damaged celluloid cover. The music box apparatus was removed prior to donation. They each contain cabinet cards and carte de visite dating from the 1880s and 1890s. The album with the flowered cover contains photographs of relatives and friends from the Pittenturf and Weikert families and the music box album contains photographs of mostly Hollebaugh relatives and a few of Lillian Mae's cousins. The images were labeled, possibly as late as 1935, and dated. The cards can be slid out as they are not held in with adhesive. Several family photos were removed and kept by the donor, and photocopies of the images were inserted in their place. Cased images of George W. Schriver and Daniel Free Pittenturf were removed as well.

Scope and Content:

Photographs collected in these albums encompass parents, cousins, and friends of Lillian Mae Pittenturf Hollebaugh and several of her husband's nieces, cousins, and an aunt and uncle. They are from the Beck, Booke, Brown, Bushman, Culp, Dougherty, Eckenrode, Gerlach, Hay, Hollebaugh, Ickes, Kitzmiller, Martin, Mechey, Milan, Mumper, Owens, Pittenturf, Plan, Ramer, Rodkey, Rouzer, Rupp, Schriver, Slaybaugh, Smith, Spangler, Speese, Tawney, Tinsley, Truxel, and Weikert families. Possibly the oldest original image in the album is a childhood photograph of Lillian Mae that she has labeled as "Age 20 months ~ Myself as a Baby! Lillie M. Pittenturf." In addition to providing names and dates for the photographs, Lillian Mae described her relationship with the person with comments like "A Friend ~ a one-time Sweetheart" or "dearest of all cousins to me." Occasionally she listed someone's profession. She also provided a location for many of the photographs. Locations include Gettysburg, PA; Harrisburg, PA; Hanover, Pa; Spartanburg, SC; Charleston, SC; and Baltimore, MD.
