Biographical Note

Jack Wolfinger graduated from Gettysburg College in 1970, having attended from 1966 to 1970. He majored in English as well as took part in a variety of extracurricular activities during his time at Gettysburg. Wolfinger was involved in the Owl and Nightingale Players as an actor and played trumpet in the college band, as well as being part of a club called "Group X" which aimed to reignite the social and intellectual life at Gettysburg.

Scope and Content Note

This collection highlights the extracurricular activities and social attitudes of students in the late 1960s and early 1970s, with an emphasis on protests and counterculture movements. Anti-war pamphlets as well as student made publications circulated on campus are included in this collection. Wolfinger's notebooks and class papers also give insight into how classes were conducted and taught during his time here, as well as the difference in materials and teaching practices shown in these notes.
